Festival Neue Literatur: Various locations; The New Yorker

THE NEW YORKER

- Subscribe
- home
- New Yorker magazine articles
- News
- Culture
- Politics
- Books
- Business
- Cartoons
- Humor
- Archive

- Double Take
- Photo Booth
- Daily Shouts
- Page-Turner
- Daily Comment
- Amy Davidson
- John Cassidy
- Borowitz
- Richard Brody

- The New Yorker
- Arts & Culture
- Events

GOINGS ON ABOUT TOWN: ABOVE AND BEYOND

FESTIVAL NEUE LITERATUR

Founded in 2010, the city’s only annual German-language literary festival that is held in English returns Feb. 22-24, with events in Brooklyn and Manhattan. This year’s gathering is curated by the translator Susan Bernofsky and the journalist Claudia Steinberg, and it features six contemporary German-language writers—Clemens Setz (Austria), Cornelia Travnicek (Austria), Leif Randt (Germany), Silke Scheuermann (Germany), Tim Krohn (Switzerland), and Ulrike Ulrich (Switzerland)—as well as the writers Justin Taylor and Joshua Ferris, who will appear in conversation with them. (For more information, visit festivalneueliteratur.org.)

February 22
VARIOUS LOCATIONS
Various locations
212-352-3101

Subscribe now to get more of The New Yorker's signature mix of politics, culture, and the arts.

You might like