The Karen Kupperman Research Fellowship Fund

Karen Ordahl Kupperman, Silver Professor of History at New York University, is a leader and founder of the field of Atlantic history. Professor Kupperman's innovative scholarship on cross-cultural contacts between English and Indians in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries has shaped a generation of historical study of the Atlantic world. Her retirement at the end of the 2012-2013 academic year caps a career of distinguished contributions to scholarship and teaching.

Professor Kupperman is well known for her careful and dedicated advising of doctoral students. She has exemplified the very best in doctoral student mentoring in providing graduate students with intellectual guidance and encouragement throughout their graduate careers, and beyond. Many of Professor Kupperman's students and former students have also made key contributions to Atlantic history.

By establishing the Karen Kupperman Research Fellowship Fund at NYU, we, her students current and past, her colleagues, and her friends, honor her by creating the opportunity for future support for graduate student research in her name. The fund will support summer research for doctoral students in the field of Atlantic History. Awardees will be known as Kupperman Summer Research Scholars.

Gift:
I am please to make a gift of$: __________________________
to the Karen Kupperman Research Fellowship Fund (new allocation)

Payment Method and Details:
D Enclosed is my check made payable to New York University
D Please charge my
DAmex  D Visa  D Mastercard  D Discover

Name(s)

_________________________________________
Name on card

Street  Apt#/Unit

_________________________________________
City  State  Zip

Country

Email  Telephone

Circle One: Alumna/us  Parent  Friend

School:-----------

Please indicate that the contribution is for the Karen Kupperman Research Fellowship Fund (new allocation).

All contributions will be acknowledged and are tax deductible as allowed by law.