AT GEORGE MASON UNIVERSITY

Summer Seminars for Students and Recent Graduates

Dear Prof. Ramsey,

With just three weeks until the application deadline for the IHS Summer Seminars, I hope you will remind your students and recent graduates to apply.

The seminars focus on the ideas of liberty, such as individual autonomy and representative government, and how these ideas apply across disciplines and within careers.

The seminars last for one week and take place on college campuses throughout the United States. More than 60 students attend each seminar, with a typical day that includes lectures, discussion groups, and an evening reception.

We offer 12 seminars, including five on incorporating economic and policy approaches into careers and some on ideas and current issues. In particular, I recommend these seminars:

- Liberty & Leviathan: Market-based, voluntary approaches to public policy topics such as health care, immigration, and banking.
- Journalism & a Free Society: A workshop for aspiring journalists to learn practical tips from professional journalists and also concepts, such as the "seen and unseen," to use when investigating news stories.
- Scholarship & a Free Society: A graduate student research workshop on how leading academics are using the classical liberal perspective as a paradigm for academic research.

All students receive a full scholarship covering tuition, lodging, and meals. More information is available at www.TheIHS.org/seminars.

The application deadline is March 31. Students who apply early - by March 15 - could receive one of four free books on the ideas of a free society, such as The Law or The Mystery of Capital.

Please tell your students and recent graduates about the seminars. We have flyers for bulletin boards or for distribution. If you use social networks, you can use these pre-formatted links to share the seminar URL, www.TheIHS.org/seminars, on Facebook and Twitter.

I appreciate your help and hope to see your students this summer.

Cheers,

Keri
