Opportunities for Paid Internships for Graduate and Undergraduate Students

The Office of Financial Research (OFR) is a new organization, established under the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act within the Treasury Department to support the Financial Stability Oversight Council, to improve the quality of financial data, and to conduct and sponsor analysis of financial stability.

To support that effort, the OFR is looking for students to work during the Fall term at the OFR offices in Washington, DC. Interns will be paid according to the education level and work experience. We are currently recruiting students for the following internships:

Financial/Economic Research Intern

Ideal candidates include: highly motivated individuals with successful academic records who have studied topics in quantitative analysis of financial markets, financial instruments, and/or macroeconomics. Knowledge of statistics and econometrics and an aptitude for quantitative research is particularly desirable. Must be proficient in Microsoft Excel. Experience working with statistical software and large data sets is a plus. Graduate and undergraduate students with majors in economics, finance, statistics, mathematics or related fields should apply.

Technology/Data Intern

Ideal candidates include: highly motivated individuals with successful academic records who have studied development, processing, and presentation of data and information systems. Preferred skills include knowledge of UNIX, and programming in environments such as: SAS, Matlab, C++, Perl, Python, and similar products. Graduate and undergraduate students with majors in computer science, information systems, economics, finance, statistics, mathematics, or related fields should apply.

Management/Operations Intern

Ideal candidates include: organized and highly motivated individuals with successful academic records and strong communication skills who have an interest in issues related to strategic planning and organizational management. Must be proficient in Microsoft Office. Graduate and undergraduate students with majors in economics, finance, government, business administration, public administration, or related fields should apply.

Interested candidates should send a resume and cover letter to OFRJobs@treasury.gov. Please identify the position(s) for which you wish to be considered in your cover letter and in your email's subject line. Only US citizens or those in a US Permanent Resident status will be considered.
