Description

This course will examine animal minds from a primarily philosophical perspective. We will start with a survey of philosophy of mind and cognitive ethology. What is a mind, and who or what can have one? How can we learn about animal minds, and what are the main research methods that scientists use to study them? We will then ask what, as far as we know, animal minds are like. How do animals perceive the world? Do they have memories? Self-awareness? Language? Rationality? Pleasure and pain and emotion? Finally, we will consider the philosophical implications of our answers to these questions. What, if anything, does this discussion tell us about the human/nonhuman divide, and about the nature, value, and meaning of human and nonhuman life?

Grading

Your grades will be determined as follows:

- Papers (75%): You will write three papers explaining and evaluating the ideas and arguments discussed in class. You will email this paper to animalminds20@gmail.com. For each paper, you can either create your own prompt (provided that you clear it with us in advance) or select from prompts that we create. The papers will each be 1,500 words, and will each count for 25% of your final grade. Paper 1 will be due at the end of the day on 3/10, Paper 2 will be due at the end of the day on 4/14, and Paper 3 will be due at the end of the day on 5/15.

- Daily Writing (15%): Prior to each session, you will send an email to animalminds20@gmail.com with the subject heading Last Name Date (e.g. Smith 9/12) that briefly (a) summarizes one of the main ideas in the reading(s) and (b) presents a question or comment about this idea. This assignment is due no later than 1:30pm on the day of class and will be graded Pass/Fail.

- Attendance and Participation (10%): We expect regular attendance and thoughtful participation from all students. Our assessment of the quality of your performance on these items will account for 10% of your grade in this class.

Policies

- Late Assignments: Late papers will lose 1/3 letter grade for each day late. Late DW assignments will be accepted for half credit up until the start of class. Extensions and incompletes will be granted only in exceptional circumstances. If you want to request either, you must do so in advance.
