About the Speakers

Oren Ableman is a researcher and curator at the Dead Sea Scrolls Unit of the Israel Antiquities Authority. He recently completed a PhD at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem under the supervision of Esther Chazon and Noah Hacham. The title of his PhD dissertation was: "Responses to the Roman Conquest of Judea (63 BCE) in the Dead Sea Scrolls: A Historical-Literary Discussion in the Roman Context of the Sectarian Texts from Qumran".

Joseph L. Angel is Associate Professor of Jewish History at Yeshiva University. He has published numerous studies on Second Temple Judaism, including Otherworldly and Eschatological Priesthood in the Dead Sea Scrolls (Brill, 2010). He is currently working on a new edition of the Qumran manuscripts known as the Songs of the Sage (4Q510-511).

Jonathan Ben-Dov is George and Florence Wise Chair of Judaism in Antiquity at the University of Haifa. His research interests include the Hebrew Bible, Ancient Near Eastern Literature, Ancient time-reckoning, Dead Sea Scrolls and apocalyptic literature. He is currently preparing editions of writings and of texts in cryptic script from Qumran.

Moshe J. Bernstein is Professor of Bible and Jewish History at Yeshiva University, where he holds the David A. and Fannie M. Denenberg Chair in Biblical Studies. He has published extensively on Jewish biblical interpretation in antiquity, especially in the Dead Sea Scrolls. He wishes that more of the Genesis Apocryphon had survived in the caves.

Bronson Brown-deVost is a post-doctoral researcher and project manager for the international research project Scripta Qumranica Electronica, where he is currently preparing a digital edition of the large Samuel scroll from Qumran (4Q51). He completed his PhD in Bible and the ancient Near East at Brandeis University in 2015, and recently published an updated form of his dissertation, Commentary and Authority in Mesopotamia and Qumran (Göttingen: Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht, 2019). His articles may be found in many of the major research journals in the field of Qumran and biblical studies.

George J. Brooke is Rylands Professor Emeritus of Biblical Criticism and Exegesis at the University of Manchester where he taught Biblical Studies and Early Judaism from 1984 until 2016. He is also Visiting Professor of Biblical Studies at the University of Chester. Amongst his publications are Exegesis at Qumran (1985; reprinted, 2006), The Dead Sea Scrolls and the New Testament (2005), and Reading the Dead Sea Scrolls: Essays in Method (2013).
