IR HONORS SEMINAR: AMERICAN EMPIRE?

The purpose of this course is to provide a broad survey of the debate about American power and influence in international affairs, and to provide sufficient background for students to do a major research paper on the topic. Some view the American role today as creating an empire, while others view U.S. influence as just a reflection of the wealth and military might that Americans command. There are many other thoughtful perspectives as well.

In this seminar, there is a substantial amount of reading necessary; and, since much of this is in recent articles, there is no single text for the course. The course will be taught, to the maximum extent possible, in seminar fashion, so you must do the reading before coming to class. We will be covering a broad range of controversial topics which involve a combination of factual and ideological questions. There are also obvious moral considerations in many of the topics. This course will not focus on any one perspective and the seminar is designed to encourage a lively interchange of views.

This is an advanced, honors course designed to help students do research. In the major paper, each student will be expected to explore a theoretical issue, develop a testable hypothesis, and decide what kinds of evidence and methods to use in evaluating the proposition. For many, the course can be an early effort at preparing for the Senior Thesis. The seminar will be limited to 20 students who have a GPA of 3.65 or higher.

Requirements:

A) Reading: Assignments are on the attached list.

B) Short Paper: A five-page paper will be due February 24. This paper is to explore potential topics for the major paper.

C) Major Paper: A 15-20 page paper will be due May 04.

D) Exam: There will be a Mid-Term Exam on March 09, but no Final Exam.

E) Class Participation: Each student will be expected to make presentations on assigned reading and participate fully in class discussion.

F) Grading: Short paper 5%, Class discussion 20%, Mid-Term Exam 25%, Final Paper 50%
